ANI VAKIAN

Ani Vakian received her undergraduate degree from the University of California, Los Angeles in 1999. She became an associate at the firm after receiving her law degree from the University of Southern California in 2002. She has since practiced in the areas of water rights, business litigation, and property transactions. She is currently involved in water law litigation pending before the United States Supreme Court, assisting with extensive research, and briefing.

Mrs. Vakian oversaw the conveyance of thousands of acres of property pursuant to the terms of a settlement agreement which the firm successfully negotiated on behalf of a group of California farmers. She has also handled corporate formation and transactional matters, and has participated in suits in areas such as environmental contamination, Superfund (Operating Industries, Inc.), and regulatory takings.
